The FARMERS' CORNER
by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second in a series of three articles by Ralph H. Taylor, farm leader and legislative observer, analyzing bills enacted by the Legislature which will soon become law).

The 1941 session of the Legislature was the most difficult and complicated in the State's history, but if evaluated on the basis, "All's well that ends well," the results from the farmer's standpoint were, on the whole, satisfactory.

The great bulk of the bad legislation was stopped, or at least made relatively harmless. Some good legislation became law, though many important measures failed of enactment. No session in this writer's memory has ever demonstrated more conclusively the wisdom of having a system of "checks and balances." On many occasions, the Senate killed dangerous bills which had slipped through the Assembly. And in several instances, the Assembly came to the rescue and put to sleep unwise legislation which had been approved in the Senate.

In view of the vital need for a legislative check-rein, as repeatedly demonstrated during this year's session and other recent sessions, plans of labor leaders to initiate a measure to reapportion the Senate on a population basis are a threat to the welfare of agriculture and the whole State. Such a measure would throw the control of both houses of the Legislature into the three populous counties of Los Angeles, San Francisco and Alameda, which comprise 57 per cent of the State's population. The other 55 counties would be at the complete mercy of labor-dominated, urban areas. If labor goes ahead with its scheme for a city-controlled State Senate, the people of rural California will be in for the fight of their lives—a fight to retain a voice in the making of the laws which they must live under.

Among the bills affecting agriculture which were signed by Governor Olson during the recent 30-day bill signing period, and which will become law on Sept. 13, are the following:

A. B. 1139, permitting group Workmen's Compensation Insurance policies by agricultural organizations and cooperatives.

A. B. 1120, prohibiting the throwing of missiles at common carriers.

A. B. 1716, the Department of Agriculture's amendments to the Milk Control act.

A. B. 2336, amendments to the Consumer Cooperative Law in the Civil Code.

A. B. 1025, extending to grapefruit the requirement that other citrus fruits for interstate shipment be packed in boxes. Governor Olson, however, vetoed A. B. 1026, which would have made the same requirement for intrastate shipments.

S. B. 260, continuing hide and brand inspection fee at higher rate.

S. B. 536, amendments to California Marketing Act, including tree pulling provisions.

S. B. 799, providing for acreage adjustment payments under Agricultural Prorate Act.

S. B. 975, providing for the enforcement of labor contracts.

S. B. 1181, requiring report of animals killed by trains.

Also signed were numerous standardization acts, affecting avocados, citrus fruits, etc.

The Structural and Household Pest Control Operators' Law was re-written in A. B. 1057, which was signed. Two bills governing vitamin potency labeling on foods and drugs—A. B. 1071 and A. B. 1073—were also signed and will soon become law.

Farm Worker Is Held For Investigation

C. E. Green, aged about 25 years, was held for investigation at the county jail on Thursday. Green is understood to have been employed in farm work in Blair's district.

Officials said that "if anything develops, we will let you know" and declined to state for publication the nature of the matter in connection with which Green was held.

Whether it was in relation to Green's detention or not can only be guessed. However, two state Division of Forestry fire investigators and the Board of Underwriters investigator were in the courthouse Tuesday morning.

BRITISH CALL FOR HELP IN 'EVERY FIELD'

Success Or Extent Of Red Counter-Attacks Against Nazis Is Undetermined

By UNITED PRESS

The Red army jabbed into German lines with counter-attacks on the muddy eastern front today and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill pleaded with America for the utmost help in "every field" against the Nazi military machine.

Churchill's speech, as well as a similar appeal by Canadian Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King warning America that isolation had aided Adolf Hitler in the past, came as Britain pressed mobilization of her greatest possible man-power in preparation to wrest the war initiative from the Germans.

Expansion of the British armed forces to the utmost limits of man-power was forecast in London as a result of plans for steady expansion of mobilization to meet requirements of the shifting war front and the Red army resistance to the dogged German offensive.

Both Churchill and MacKenzie King directed a great part of their remarks at a London luncheon toward the United States, indirectly calling for full American participation in the war and asserting that "all free men must stand together in one line" if the world is to be saved from tragedy and universal chaos.

The British empire leaders appealed to Turkey which British sources have reported feeling increasing pressure from Berlin as well as the

High School To Open Wednesday

Special Registration Period Tonight And All Day On Friday

Classes at the county high school will open for the new year on Wednesday, September 10, and the school is at present in the midst of a pre-school registration period.

Registrations opened Wednesday of this week and continue on Thursday when a special evening registration period from seven o'clock until nine o'clock for the convenience of pupils who may be employed.

On Friday, from nine o'clock until noon and from one o'clock until four, registrations will be taken.

Up to 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning, the registration aggregated 266. This included seventy freshmen; seventy-one sophomores; sixty-four juniors and sixty-one seniors.

The registration for Wednesday enrolled a total of 205.

School officials are urging prospective pupils to enroll promptly, pointing out that class work will start with the opening of school on Wednesday, September 10th.

SHEPARD RANCH SCENE OF REUNION DURING WEEKEND

A group of relatives and other friends enjoyed a reunion during the Labor Day weekend at the homes of Mrs. Genevieve Gross and Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Volz at the Shepard ranch, in the Fruit Ridge district.

Among those who spent the weekend at the ranch were Dr. and Mrs. L. I. Brauer and son, Floyd, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Justus Brand, of Lodi; Mrs. Virginia Wilson, Miss Lorraine Westrup, Ed. Banning, Lloyd Burkholder, Mrs. Mable Lovell and Barbara and Bonnie Lovell, of San Francisco; and Miss Myrtle La Rue of Winthrop, Washington.

Burglary Suspect Is Held At Los Angeles

Sheriff George M. Smith left on Thursday morning for Los Angeles to return William Helms here for trial on burglary charges. Helms was jailed there.

County officers state he is a suspected accomplice of George Walrath, who pleaded guilty recently to the burglary of a cabin near Barton's Cabin, above Georgetown.

U. S. 50 IS AN ALL-YEAR ROAD

Tell Your Friends!

Director of Public Works W. Clark told the United Press Thursday morning at Sacramento that the state has leased from Eldorado Forest a five-acre site near the Echo Summit for its new highway maintenance station. Clearing has begun. Lumber and cement is on the ground and foundations will be poured Wednesday. There will be four buildings: a bunk house, boiler house, truck garage, and lubrication supply house. Two rotary plows and two four-wheel drive pusher plows will be delivered about December 1.

SPAIN IS PURCHASING OIL FROM TEXAS FIELDS

Shipments Sanctioned By State Department In Hope Franco May Be Kept From Active Role With Hitler And Mussolini

By MERRIMAN SMITH

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The United States is letting Spain have large quantities of petroleum products as part of an effort to prevent Spain's entrance into the war on the side of the Axis, it was learned today.

A steady stream of Spanish tankers has been calling at Port Arthur, Tex., picking up large oil and gasoline cargoes for transport to Balboa, Santander, Barcelona and Malaga.

These oil shipments have been sanctioned by the state department. State department officials would not discuss the oil export licenses granted Spain in recent months, but other quarters said this government is following with Spain a course similar to that which it tried, but now has abandoned temporarily, with Japan.

The export control administration has investigated and assured itself that none of the oil shipments to Spain has been diverted to Germany.

One responsible authority said: "If by helping Spain meet her minimum requirements for oil, we can keep her neutral, it is quite to the interests of Great Britain and this country that this be done."

"After all, there's little doubt here where the heart of General Franco lies. But if this country continues to let Spain have just enough petroleum products to meet the minimum requirements of her economy, it may keep her out of the

WILLIAM HARDEN QUALIFIES FOR TRAINING IN NAVY YOEMAN SCHOOL

William E. Harden, 18, son of Mrs. James Bailey, of near Placerville, is making progress in the Navy, in which he enlisted last June.

According to Arthur R. Hill, CEM, a member of the Navy recruiting staff at Sacramento, Harden has completed his recruit training course at San Diego and has qualified for special training in the Yeoman School of the Navy, at Toledo, Ohio.

"A yeoman," Mr. Hill explains, "has special duties of a clerical or secretarial nature."

Harden, Mr. Hill said, is a graduate of the county high school and was highly recommended by his teachers as an applicant for enlistment in the Navy.

Mr. Hill visits Placerville regularly each Tuesday for the convenience of men interested in enlistment in the Navy, and makes his headquarters at room one in the basement of the postoffice, from noon until three o'clock each Tuesday.

This coming Tuesday will be an exception to the rule, since the day is Admission Day and Mr. Hill will cancel his visit for next week. His next regular visit to Placerville will be on Tuesday, September 16th.

Men interested in discussing the opportunities in the Navy or the Naval Reserve could arrange an appointment with Mr. Hill by addressing him at the Sacramento district recruiting office of the Navy.

13 BILLION DOLLAR TAX INCOME SEEN FOR U. S. UNDER NEW BILL

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The senate finance committee revised its estimate of the yield of the pending revenue bill to $3,679,800,000 and forecast an increase in total federal tax receipts to $13,305,330,000 annually.

The new estimated yield of the tax bill was given in the majority report of the committee, which was issued shortly before the huge money measure came before the senate for debate at noon.

Oil shipments to Spain in American vessels have not been permitted for some time, necessitating the use of Spanish tankers.

Delivery Reported

LOS ANGELES, (UP)—The American tanker L. P. St. Clair has reached Vladivostok with 95,000 barrels of aviation fuel for the Russian air force, Union Oil Company, owners of the tanker, announced today.

It was the first delivery of aviation gasoline to the Soviets in the new United States program of aid to Russia in Russia's war with Germany. The shipments have been subject of protests by Japan, German Axis partner.

The announcement did not say when the tanker reached the Siberian port. News of its safe arrival was withheld at least 12 hours until the U. S. Maritime Commission authorized the announcement.

Two other tankers are due in Vladivostok Sunday and Monday respectively, according to maritime schedules. One carries 95,000 barrels of high octane fuel and the other 75,000.

The L. P. St. Clair left here Aug. 15 and made the 5000-mile trip in 16 days.

There had been much speculation in diplomatic and shipping circles on possibility of Japan interfering with the Russian deliveries. The tankers must pass through Japanese waters to reach Vladivostok.

MRS. GEORGE TINNEY IS CALLED BY DEATH AT PALO ALTO

The Tinney family, of this city, was notified by telephone Wednesday of the death at Palo Alto that day of Mrs. George Tinney.

Mrs. Tinney was the wife of the late George Tinney, who was a native of this county, born seventy-five years ago today, on the old Tinney ranch, in the Gold Hill district.

Mrs. Tinney is survived by two sons, Francis and Raymond G., and by a daughter, Mrs. Charles Reganess, who lives in the Philippines, but who was at Palo Alto when her mother passed away.

The funeral services will be held at Palo Alto at ten o'clock Friday morning.

Christian Endeavorers Meet At Shingle

The Christian Endeavorers will hold their meeting at the home of Patricia Nichols near Shingle next Sunday night. The group will meet at the church at 7 o'clock where transportation will be provided for all who wish to go. Miss Nichols will be the leader and there will be a guest speaker. The young people are planning for an "All Church Service" Sunday night, September 21, when the district gospel team will be present and conduct the meeting.

The interest of Mr. Fox in the work of the Federated Church is of long standing and the presentation of the memorial chimes is but one instance of his many substantial contributions in support of the church and its work.

APPEAL NOTICE IS GIVEN IN CONVICTION OF SELLING LIQUOR TO MINORS

Counsel for Paul Gilbert gave verbal notice of intention to appeal Thursday morning, after Gilbert had been sentenced in the Justice's Court of Placerville township to pay a fine of $125 for selling liquor to minors.

Gilbert had been found guilty on Wednesday, following a jury trial. The jury recommended leniency.

The notice of intention to appeal to the Superior Court was given after a motion for a new trial had been denied.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE of Banking certificates will be claimed by six Placerville employees of the Bank of America at a commencement dinner of the Sacramento Chapter of the institute on September 18th. Ray Ellis, former chairman of the Placerville branch of the Sacramento Chapter, was not present when the picture was taken. Mr. Ellis will claim a "pre-standard" certificate. In the picture left to right, are E. Ogden Hook, who will receive a "standard" certificate; and D. A. Westerman, Mrs. Agnes Schiff, J. Kemper Jackson and Lester McKenzie, each of whom will receive a "pre-standard" certificate.—Democrat Photo.

Admission Day State Holiday

California And County And City Offices, Bank And Stores Will Close

Admission Day, Tuesday, September 9th, will be a state holiday, observing the anniversary of the state's admission to the Union in 1850.

State, county and city offices, the Placerville branch of the Bank of America, and schools of the county will be closed for the day.

Admission Day is one of several days designated as a closing day for principal food stores of the community and while no formal check-up has been made, it has been indicated that a number of the other business houses of the community will observe the day as a holiday.

Thursday morning there was a rumor—and it could have been based only on wishful thinking—that Governor Olsen might declare Monday, also, a state holiday. Up to this writing this had not been done.

If it is done, state, county and city offices and the bank may be closed Monday, also.

MEMORIAL CHIMES TO BE GIVEN CHURCH BY A. S. FOX

Formal presentation of a set of memorial chimes, given to the Federated Church by A. S. Fox in memory of his late wife, will take place at the Sunday morning church service, which also will include a dedicatory service for the chimes.

The chimes are played from the organ keyboard and at the present time their notes are amplified and may be heard throughout the community over a special loud speaker system presently installed at the church.

The chimes will be used, church officials have indicated, in connection with announcing some of the worship services of the church, and at special times of religious observance during the year.

With the present loud speaker arrangement, the tones of the chimes are heard, it is said, at a greater distance than the church bell is heard.

The interest of Mr. Fox in the work of the Federated Church is of long standing and the presentation of the memorial chimes is but one instance of his many substantial contributions in support of the church and its work.

Spray Meetings Are Scheduled

The Farm Advisor's office announces a series of four spray demonstrations during the coming week on the following schedule:

Wednesday, at ten o'clock at the W. J. Clark ranch; and at 2 o'clock at Sperinde Brothers;

Thursday, at ten o'clock at the John Davey ranch, and at 2 o'clock at the Ed. Odlin ranch.

All interested are welcome to attend.

CITY'S TAXES CUT 4 CENTS

Reduction, Clerk Says, Is In Bond Fund; Fire Report Is Notable

The city council at its regular September meeting Wednesday night set the tax rate for the current year at $1.62 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

The figure is four cents less than the rate last year and the reduction, according to City Clerk Harold Duden, is made possible by the retirement of outstanding bonds; the amount required to be raised this year being less because of the reduced outstanding bonded indebtedness.

The report for the month of August was notable in that it showed the heaviest fire loss of any month of the year. This was damage amounting to but twenty-five dollars, done by a fire in a Tahoe Greyhound Line bus.

Under the fire department heading, the council further discussed a possible fire house site and it was noted that no offers of sites had been received. The council has received an offer from Councilman A. Greeley to sell his residence site to the city for $5,000 for a fire house site and has invited other offers. None other has been received to date. Councilman Frost reported widening of Spring Street at the curve opposite the Joseph Schwartz property will start following Admission Day.

The council took action expressing an appreciation for the State Highway Commission's recognition of U. S. Route 50 as an all-year road. Benches were ordered placed in the city park at the corner of Main Street and Bedford Avenue.

The council passed a resolution commending the service of the late Max Baer as a former member of the city council, and paying respect to his memory.

ARMY CONVOY OF 300 UNITS WITH 1,700 MEN PASSES THROUGH COUNTY

El Dorado County residents saw an army convoy of 300 motorized units and 1,700 men pass down U. S. Route 50 on Thursday.

We were unable to learn the exact identity of the organization, which moved swiftly in motorized equipment of various types.

It was unofficially reported that the unit had shared in the recent maneuvers in the northwest, and was now enroute to Riverside County at Camp Haan, it's home station.

Several large guns were included in the unit's equipment, suggesting the possibility of its being a coast artillery unit.

The convoy was escorted by the state Highway Patrol and in Placerville the local police gave them right-of-way through the county seat.

Among licenses to wed reported as issued at Reno during the weekend was one to Elmer E. Noe, 19, of Livingston, this state, and Katherine M. Milligmeier, 18, of Pollock Pines.

In addition to his regular duties with the basketball team, Price will do football scouting and assist Coach Walter Gordon of the junior varsity Ramblers.

LEASE-LEND FUND PROBE PROMISED

New Approval Declared Probable But Results Of Program Will Be Checked

By JOHN L. STEELE

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Members of the house appropriations said today that President Roosevelt's anticipated request for additional lend-lease and armament funds would result in a "thorough" investigation of the defense and lend-lease programs.

The request is expected to be transmitted early next week, the lend-lease request to range between $5,000,000,000 and $7,000,000,000.

There has been no estimate on the amount of supplemental defense appropriations to be asked.

Rep. Clifton A. Woodrum, D., Va., a ranking member of the appropriations committee and floor manager of many defense appropriations, said the new requests would receive careful study in the light of actual guns, planes, tanks and munitions provided from the $56,000,000,000—$7,000,000,000 of it for lend-lease—which already has been appropriated or authorized. He was confident that congress would provide whatever funds are necessary to "round-out" the defense and lend-lease programs.

Several members of congress said they expected a protracted fight over the lend-lease phase of the request. They said they would request full information on the quantities and types of supplies actually transferred to lend-lease recipients and the effects of the transfers on the preparedness and morale of the United States armed forces, if more funds are requested. They also favored submission of information by the administration to clarify its aid-to-Russia policy.

Board Appoints Tax Appraiser

County Will Exhibit At Annual Fair At Plymouth, Sept. 19-21

The regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors for September was held on Tuesday and Wednesday at the courthouse, being deferred from Monday owing to the Labor Day holiday.

In a review of the board minutes, special items of interest include the appointment of Dwight Douglas as a tax appraiser; and a vote authorizing entry of a county booth and exhibit at the annual fair at Plymouth, September 19-20 and 21.

Mr. Douglas is appointed at a salary of $250 per month, including expenses. He will, presumably, undertake a survey of the tax values of the county from all angles.

The exhibit at the Plymouth fair, authorized by the board and to this extent an exhibit "by El Dorado County," will be installed under the supervision of Wallace M. Ripley, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Boelzner were summoned to Los Angeles on Wednesday by the receipt of word of the death there of Mrs. Boelzner's father. The mother of Mrs. Boelzner had been here recently assisting Mrs. Boelzner following the recent birth of a son in the family.

SYNOPSIS

Minnie Fogarty, a product of New York's gas house district is orphaned at the age of 13. The Children's Society comes for her and Minnie escapes down the fire escape. She seeks refuge with old Pop Dolan, genial brewery watchman. Ensnared in the comfortable office of the idle brewery, which Pop calls her "bood-war," Minnie or the "Princess of Pilsen" as the old man affectionately nicknamed her — is happier than she has ever been. Then Min learns she has won the Calcutta Sweepstakes. Pop fears Min will now be taken from him and their happy little household broken up. Min's brother, Danny, had left home as soon as he was able, forgetting all about his parents and sister. Now he arrives with his lawyer, Maxie Greenblum, and tries to have Min go with him so that he can share in her fortune, claiming that he is Min's legal guardian. Bill Duffy, handsome young detective, reveals that Danny's wife has just been arrested and is no fit person to care for Min. Danny draws his gun but, before he can pull the trigger, Bill's fist crashes to Danny's jaw. ... Then comes the news that the report of Min's winning the Sweepstakes is false. Min's dreams of a yacht with brass fittings and an organ-travel, and even marriage to the Prince of Wales—fade. Detective Duffy tells Min she will not marry anyone but him. Danny discovers Pop's secret still and plans to blackmail him. The family of Andrew Wessel, wealthy owner of the brewery, is deeply interested in the newspaper stories about Min and her lottery luck. Andrew, Jr., plans to visit the brewery and investigate.

CHAPTER VI

Half swathed in cheesecloth and clothes protected by a big gingham apron, Her Highness was busy red-ding up the "palace" when her "senechal" answered the vigorous hammering at the outer postern. Still fearful of further intrusion, Pop very gruffly shouted without opening the door, "Who is it?"

"Mr. Wessel," came the answer. "Don't know you."

"Son of the owner and also his counsel."

"Trouble," groaned Pop and then, aloud, as he partly opened the door, "No foolin'!"

"No foolin'!" came the response like a password. Pop looked into a pair of frank dark eyes set in a smiling face, a rather narrow and aristocratic countenance. "May I come in?"

"Yes, sir."

"How about the dog?"

The visitor leaned over and patted Terry, scratched his pit-cropped ears and closed the greeting with a playful slap. Terry, charmed, showed what he could do in the way of leaping and turning in the air, making complete circles and landing four-square, whooping a welcome.

"You like dogs," said Pop.

"He's a dandy, Mr. Dolan, he's a dandy. My dad will go crazy over him; we saw his picture in the paper this morning."

"Want to look over the place, sir?"

"Just a glance. It's about time. We'd almost forgotten about it although we can see the roof from our windows up on the hill."

"It's been closed a long time, sir, and is going to ruin up above. I'm kept here only to meet the demands of the fire insurance companies. Just follow me, sir. This little place is my regular hangout but there is a cleaner room in the back. Be quiet, Terry. I see you have a way with dogs, Mr. Wessel."

"I love them. We have plenty of them but keep them out on the Long Island place. The bull terrier, the Yankee breed, is the finest of all. My dad had one and it nearly broke his heart when he died of old age. Swore off owning bull terriers because of his grief."

Minnie was on a small folding step-ladder polishing the painting of the visitor's grandfather when they entered. She turned and looked down at them, her eyes wide with surprise.

"We have a visitor, Minnie," said Pop. "Skin down the ladder. This is Mr. Wessel, lawyer for the brewery. His father owns the plant."

"Yes, sir, yes, sir, just cleaning up."

"That's my grandfather you've been polishing up," laughed the young man. Her embarrassment was brief but the roses remained in her cheeks and a bright sparkle in her eyes. This thing of having a brewery for a home was proving an exciting experience. First the half million dollars dream, and its imaginary sequel—the yacht, the royal alliance, the visiting of kings and emperors, the organ on the yacht, the brass fittings, etc.

"Sit down, Highness," ordered Pop. "There's nothing to be excited about."

"Y-y-es, sir," Min stammered, putting her dust-rags beside a chair. But there was a lot to be excited about. The photographers, the mob, the defense of the outer walls with the hose and then everything wiped off the slate—yacht, prince—the whole works. The arrival of Danny and Detective Duffy, her informal betrothal to the latter, the attempted attack by Terry on Danny, the crack on the jaw, the last of the reporters, the interview and now another handsome young man, this time with lots of money. That call with which she was born was coming to "work."

"My father asked me to take a glance at the old place," Wessel explained. "Just a look around to see whether there is any danger of it falling down. And to see how you are getting on. Are you comfortable?"

"Quite so, Mr. Wessel," said Pop. "All we have to do is guard against fire. We cleaned up this room. It's hers. And the library adjoining. We do a sight of reading, the two of us."

"Minnie goes to school?" asked the visitor.

"In a way. She has a good grounding in reading, writing and arithmetic."

"And deportment," added Min. "I can see that," said Wessel.

"But I'd better be showing you around," Mr. Wessel, said Pop.

"I'll take your word for it," declared Wessel. "It's charming in this room, so near the water. Why, it's ready for a directors' meeting right now."

"Minnie wanted to clean up the place," laughed Pop. "but I estimated that it would take her 15 years for the whole job."

The young man stroked Terry's keghashed head thoughtfully.

"May I offer you a drop of something?" asked Pop.

"Thanks, if you will join me," Min hurried off and returned with the bottle, a pitcher of water and glasses on a somewhat ornate tray, salvaged from the junk in the lumber room.

"It's pure stuff," assured the host. "I can vouch for that." The glasses were slender, of the type used for rare amontillados in the old days, left in his office closet by the guest's father when prohibition came. They sipped it.

"Superb!" exclaimed Young Mr. Wessel. "Benedictine!"

"You seem very happy, you two," commented Wessel. "It must be fine to sit in one of the big windows here of a summer night, listening to a radio program while watching the boats glide by. I'd like to come here some evening."

"Glad to have you but we have no radio," said Pop.

"I'd love to send you one, if you will let me."

Minnie clapped her hands in delight.

"Fact is," exclaimed Wessel, "my whole family is interested in this young lady, Mr. Dolan. The stories in the papers delighted us. If we can do anything for her or you, her guardian, we'll be glad to."

"Thank you," sighed Pop. "It's kind of you. Never mind how happy one may be there is no telling when one may need a friend above anything else the Lord might bless one with."

At the postern, escorting the guest to the street, Pop said in farewell: "I wouldn't like you to think we're extravagant, Mr. Wessel."

"In what way?"

"The benedictine. I make it myself for home use. No monk ever made it any better."

For the "Queen" and her "senechal" all the world was good and fair that Spring. Several times a week, Pop would climb, with Terry at his heels, to the top of the "castle" and stow away some more money at the bottom of the empty cold water tank. He had long lost track of his total cash but, with a long stick, he would take a sounding, pushing into and rustling the bank notes in the tank as a boy would stir the leafy carpet of a forest.

One night, after two days of cleansing Spring rain, when the stars were even able to shine through the white blister of Manhattan's myriad lights, young Wessel called and sat with them in a river window, escorted to an easy chair by Minnie carrying the watchman's lantern.

"No lamp for this room?" he asked.

"No, sir. There's more than a thousand pairs of eyes looking from over there," explained Pop, waving to Welfare Island's nest of lights, "and crooked brains behind 'em."

"Well, how can they worry you, Pop?"

"When a man is behind the bars, Mr. Wessel, he has lots of time to think. Many a man over there is looking up to the lights from the windows of the rich above us, thinking of a way to rob the people in the penhouses and swank apartments. If the windows here were lighted some prisoner about to leave the Island flat broke would think it would be easy to find the end of this street, enter this place, crack the watchman over the head and rob him. Wouldn't he?"

"Yes."

"Of course, not knowing that Terry is here," remarked Pop.

"Is it entirely safe for Minnie down in this district?" Wessel asked. "My dad thinks not. Would you mind getting me a sip of Pop's nectar, Minnie?"

"And fill Terry's water bowl, Highness," added Pop.

"She is such a beautiful child and the newspapers gave her so much publicity that my father feels uneasy. You see, Pop, she is living on his property and father feels a certain amount of responsibility. You can understand that."

"I never thought of that, Mr. Wessel. But if I provided a home for her elsewhere she would be more liable to meet people who might want to do her harm. Here she always has Terry and myself to guard her. And, to tell you the truth, Mr. Wessel, I don't know what we'd do without her now. But you couldn't understand what's back of the thing I'm trying to say, Mr. Wessel. Only an old man like never had a little one could understand."

"My father asked me to find out whether she would like to go to school—not public school, but a training school for young ladies. There is a fine one up on the hill, near us. Father is just crazy about kids, and my sisters have grown up. He says that youngsters keep him young."

Minnie returned and with her none other than Detective Duffy himself, stirred by the beauty of the night to array himself wondrously.

"Glad to meet her," murmured the city detective as he groped in the gloom for a chair. He felt in a horrible predicament. He could not make out, until his eyes became used to the darkness, the form or feature of the stranger. Now if the strange bird was there to make an impression on the "Queen," he would not be able to lamp Bill's superb raiment, handsome countenance, and realize that he (the bird) hadn't a chance in the world.

"Hello, Pop," Duffy half-growled. "What's the dirt?"

"All quiet, Bill. Mr. Wessel's father owns the brewery and he's his father's lawyer."

"Is that so? No foolin'?" There was unconcealed doubt and a trace of a sneer in that voice.

"No harm in that, is there, Mr. Duffy?" asked Wessel with a laugh. "It's a good old brewery and in its time it helped out many a picnic and party."

Harvard had left some of its lofty tone in the young lawyer's voice. Few graduates manage to escape it. To Bill that sort of talk, which in his ears was neither real English nor good plain American, was particularly annoying. Almost anything could get by in the gas house district except broad "a's," etc. And was this la-de-da-horning in on him? Bill felt for his hat and tipped it carefully to an angle that would show this guy that he hadn't a chance. But it was too dark for Wessel to see it.

"Bring the lamp, Queen," he ordered.

"What's the idea, Bill?" asked Pop.

"Just bring the light," repeated the detective as if he were bored to death. "I'd like to have a look at Attorney Wessel."

Minnie hurried in with a lighted lamp. The dapper detective and the very youthful lawyer scrutinized each other.

"Thanks, Queen," said Bill, adding masterfully: "You can take the lantern back to the kitchen now." But while the Duffy features were still on exhibition he laughed with forced gaiety while Wessel smiled pleasantly.

BRITISH CALL FOR HELP ON "EVERY FIELD"

threat of a Nazi military blow into the southeast.

All of Britain's preparations and appeals were designed to strengthen the Allied forces for a future attempt to break the offensive power with which Hitler has overrun Europe and all future plans hinged for the time being on the Red army fighting for its life on an 1,800-mile Russian front.

Moscow dispatches reported that that fight was proceeding satisfactorily despite the mounting threat to Leningrad. A series of Red army counter attacks of a local nature drove back the Germans on scattered sectors and appeared to slow or halt the general Nazi advance.

The Russian gains, however, were definitely of a local nature and were designed primarily to stop, weaken and harass the broad German offensive, presumably with a view to a more general counter offensive in the future if all went well.

So far, it has been impossible for neutral observers to determine the success or the extent of these operations, due largely to failure of Moscow to give specific positions.

On the war front as a whole, however, the Germans found progress increasingly difficult and costly and faced important military dangers as the Russians claimed to have forced them back from "one position to another" in ceaseless counter jabs.

THE WOMEN'S HOME and Hospital of the Salvation Army, at East 28th and Garden Streets, in Oakland, for which The Salvation Army is inviting support in a finance campaign now under way in El Dorado County.

SALVATION ARMY FUND SOLICITATION IN COUNTY IS SPONSORED BY LOCAL COMMITTEE; WENTWORTH IS CHAIRMAN

The 1941 campaign for funds for the Salvation Army was opened this week in the county and will continue through September 13, culminating with Tag Day according to Guy E. Wentworth, chairman of the El Dorado County Sponsoring Committee.

The committee formed at a luncheon meeting Wednesday led by N. L. Good of the Salvation Army headquarters in San Francisco includes the following: Guy E. Wentworth, chairman; Wallace M. Ripley, secretary; E. Ogden Hook, treasurer; and Lester McKenzie, Homer P. Brown, Helen A. Byrnes, Mrs. Percy McNie, Mrs. John S. Nelson, Chas. L. Fossati, Charles N. Elia is the authorized solicitor.

"In this highly modernized program instituted by the Salvation Army, a special service can now be rendered our community," says Mr. Wentworth. "All monies collected are now disbursed through the local committee and a portion remains for any unmet needs that may arise."

Advantages gained from the organization of this committee will include prompt admittance of applicants to the Women's Home and Hospitals in Oakland, Los Angeles and San Diego; increased personal interest in the Lytton Home for Boys and Girls; centralization of information on the advantages of the Evangeline residences in San Francisco and Los Angeles; and greater efficiency in the handling of the Salvation Army's department of prison work parole sponsorship.

"In fact under the 'Home Rule' arrangement this committee will serve as an agent for the Army Headquarters with a minimizing of detail which heretofore as tended to hold up the well intended efforts of the Salvation Army."

This service is a need long felt in this and in every community declared Mr. Wentworth, and the Salvation Army is to be congratulated upon its foresight and appreciation of problems as they apply to the individual areas.

Contributions may be mailed at any time to E. Ogden Hook, who is the Salvation Army treasurer for El Dorado County.

Reclamation Bureau warns against purchase of land in Columbia Basin without proper investigation

COULEE DAM, Wash.—A flagrant case of misrepresentation of the sale of a tract of land in the Columbia Basin Project, in which a young Montana couple agreed to pay $500 for land worth $64 and which never will be irrigated, contrary to an unscrupulous land agent's promise, was reported today by the Bureau of Reclamation.

The mis-guided couple, whose names the government has withheld, informed the Federal Land Bureau that a slick-tongued salesman for a Seattle land company told them water would be available for their tract in 1942, and that it was one of the best pieces of farm land in the basin.

Sadly they learned that no water will be available for any land in the project area prior to 1944, if by that time, and worse, that the land they had purchased was so-called Class 6 or poor land, for which no irrigation water will be provided.

They found they had agreed to buy sagebrush-covered waste, dry as a bone, with no prospects of ever being usable; land worth $3 an acre for $23.50 an acre!

To prevent honest people from being similarly bilked, the Bureau today repeated its recent warnings against falsifications being made by shady, fast-talking salesmen.

When anyone is approached to purchase land within or near the Columbia Basin Project, he should get in touch immediately with the Bureau of Reclamation at Coulee Dam, Washington, to determine if the land is actually within the project area, what its government-appraised value is, and when it will receive water. This information will be given absolutely free.

Emphasis was placed on the fact that some of the land may remain without water for 20 years or more, the plan being to bring under irrigation only small parcels of land each year.

The racketeers often state that no charges for water will be assessed for the first six years. That's another falsehood, the Bureau said; payments on construction costs may possibly be deferred for a few years, but operation and maintenance payments must be paid as they accrue.

POLLOCK PINES NEWS

The P. T. A. met at the home of Mrs. Harvey West in Fresh Pond last Thursday in conjunction with the regular meeting of the Pioneer Club. Mrs. Ray Wakeman was co-hostess with Mrs. West. A report on the lunch booth at the recent county fair was given and the ladies were very pleased to have realized such a large sum for the winter's school hot lunches. The afternoon was spent sewing for the approaching fall carnival to be held the latter part of this month at the school, proceeds to go for lunches also. The Pollock Pines P. T. A. is a very effective organization and always does a fine job of whatever they undertake. Such teamwork is entirely due to the grand spirit of co-operation of the members and we have the very best—watch us grow!

Miss Marge Tarr has enrolled in college in Sacramento and has moved to the capital city for the winter.

Miss Merry Phillips has returned from her vacation in Berkeley to resume her duties as intermediate teacher in our school.

Lester Baumhoff spent the holiday week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Baumhoff.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Kolhker were visiting friends and attending business over the weekend. They are located at Bishop, Calif., for the winter.

Mrs. Harry Reese will be the next hostess for the Pioneer Club which meets next on Thursday, Sept. 11. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurie Fox was completely destroyed by fire last week, with very few effects saved. The children were all unharmed, fortunately.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Coleman and son Edwin and Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, Sr., stopped in for a few moments on their way from Lake Tahoe to Chico, to visit the Tuman and Ahlstrom families, relatives of Mrs. Albert Coleman.

BERKELEY. (UP)—Clarence (Nibs) Price, University of California basketball coach, has been named to Golden Bears' football coaching staff.
